

HOW VIRGINIA PEOPLE LIVE

Families Studied and Compared With Those of North Carolina.

MAKES HIS ANNUAL REPORT

Discusses Cost of Living in Connection With Size of Family Income.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 28.—The eighteenth annual report of the Commissioner of Labor, Colonel Carroll D. Wright, which is just out, contains a number of interesting things concerning the cost of living in the United States, and that cost, when studied in connection with the size of the family income, the size of the family, and the section of country in which the family is located.

For instance, 386 families were studied for an average in Virginia. Of this number, the head of 374 were natives of the United States, two were from England, seven from Germany, eight from Ireland, on from Italy and one from Wales. Of the 386 heads of families, 248 were of work, including all the foreigners save one of the Englishmen; 35 of the wives out of a total of 81, for five of the heads of families, were widowers, were at work, and all these were the wives of native born husbands. The heads of 25 of the families were widows, 23 per cent, were at work; all the foreign husbands were working. Incidentally, it may be stated that in the majority of the States all the husbands were at work. The number of wives at work was 349, which is a high average.

In North Carolina the number of families taken was 208 and the percentage of wives at work was only 3.66. Of the total of North Carolina families studied, the heads of only three were of foreign birth. England, Netherlands and Scotland furnished the foreign husbands. The commissioner took the nationality of the husband only. Only one of the husbands was idle, and one was an invalid. Three of the families were without husbands, and four without wives.

Number of Children.
Of the Virginia families studied, ninety, including two English and one German, had 173 children contributing to the family income.

The total number of children, including those in which there were no children, was 1,000. Of these, 175 were at work, 438 at school, and 440 at home, with six at school and at work.

The 186 families studied in North Carolina possessed 607 children, an average of 2.33 to the family, while the average to a Virginia family was 2.66. Ninety-five of the families from North Carolina had 291 children at school, 240 at home, and none at school and at work, too. The number of children at work, representing thirty-five families at work was 76. Of this number, nine males and sixteen females were between ten and sixteen years of age; twenty males and twenty females between sixteen and twenty-one years old, and four males and six females had passed their majority.

The average size of each of the 386 Virginia families is given as 4.49. The number of children having income from the occupation of the husbands was 356, from the wives 35, and from the children 88, while boarders and lodgers furnished the income for 107 and from other sources, 21. The average size of each of the 198 North Carolina families was 5.02, including husbands and wives.

Size of Families.
The average size of each of the 386 Virginia families is given as 4.49. The number of children having income from the occupation of the husbands was 356, from the wives 35, and from the children 88, while boarders and lodgers furnished the income for 107 and from other sources, 21. The average size of each of the 198 North Carolina families was 5.02, including husbands and wives.

Of the 386 Virginia families, 278 lived in rented houses, and 108 in their own homes. Of the latter, eighty-five were unencumbered, and twenty-three were mortgaged. And right here comes a mysterious fact. The tables show that one of the 386 families does not spend any money for clothing. The reader cannot help wondering whether this family wears clothes. All of the 198 North Carolina families are shown to have been wearing clothing, 122 rent and own their places of abode.

The average total family income among the Virginians was $714.78, of which amount $1008.79 went for rent; $125.22 for principal on the mortgage, not including payments made by six families in which principal and interest were combined, $27.75 for fuel, $23.77 for fuel, $6.73 for lighting, $1003.80 for clothing, $273.62 for food, and $129.39 for other purposes, making the total expenditures per family, $625.40; 247 of the families had an average surplus of $147.72 at the end of the year, and 61 an average deficit of $42.22.

The average income of the 198 North Carolina families was $696.02; the average income of the husband was $696.02; of the wife, $14.14; of the children, $392.32. Of the total income, $696.02 was paid out for rent; $27.75 for fuel, $23.77 for fuel, $6.73 for lighting, $1003.80 for clothing, $273.62 for food, and $129.39 for other purposes, making the total family expenditures $625.40, or but little more than $5 left at the end of the year. $111, 172 families had an average surplus of $126.13, while 26 had an average deficit of $44.02.

Thirty-six Virginia families spent money during the year for fresh beef, and 18 for salt beef; 23 families for fresh and salt hog products during the year, 27 live don or meat also, 34 ate chicken during the year, 34 ate fish, 34 ate eggs, 20 families used milk, 26 used butter, 22 ate cheese, 26 used lard, 26 drank tea, 25 drank coffee, 35 used sugar, 25 sopped

THE LIGHTHOUSE A BIG SCENIC PLAY

Audience Accepted the Piece as a Melodrama of the Real Sort.

"The Lighthouse by the Sea" deserves the title "Scenic Sensation," as bestowed upon it by the management. It reminds one of the Lighthouse, which is a melodrama of the real kind, and the audience accepts it just as it is, without any question as to its being the genuine thing.

If there were any doubts, the third act would quickly settle them. The climax of this act takes the house by storm. It is well worked up, and goes tearing along with two gun shots, a crack on the head, the tumbling down of a stairway—which makes as much noise as real lumber falling from a roof—and then ends with the walk across the wire, as a girl, torch in hand, goes to light the lamp in the lighthouse, which the pair of villains have just extinguished.

The storm effect in this act is one of the best ever put upon the Bijou stage. The angry clouds, shifting in the face of the wind, present a scene as realistic as stage mechanism can make it. The company, with few exceptions, is the same that presented the piece here last season. They all play their parts to the entire satisfaction of the audience, and it has been a long time since the Bijou audience has seen a villain so unmercifully as they did the one in this play. Hises to the villain sound as sweet to his ear as applause to the hero.

It Carries Citizens' Transit Franchise Over Till Thursday.

The Committee on Streets held a meeting last night at which the petition of the Citizens' Rapid Transit Company for an extension of the time limit in which to complete the building of the road was considered but little progress was made with the matter.

Hon. Charles Y. Mason, who presided at the company and expressed the view that some of the provisions relating to the subject of electrolysis were hard on his company. The matter was discussed until after 11 o'clock, when it was laid on the table until Thursday night when a special meeting will be held.

MR. GILL HERE.

Was Formerly General Superintendent of C. and O.

Among the visitors in the city yesterday was Mr. M. G. Gill, formerly general superintendent of the lines of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, west of Clifton Forge, and one of the best known railroad men in the South.

Mr. Gill had retired from railroad work some years ago, owing to declining health, and purchased a farm at Winna, Ind., where he has since resided. He visited the central offices of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway yesterday, and was given a warm greeting. Mr. Gill was in the city on his way to Norfolk for a few days.

Mr. George W. Stevens, president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, left yesterday for Newport News and Norfolk to spend a day or two on business of the road.

The St. Louis Exposition will close to-morrow, after being conducted for seven months, during which the travel from the East has been enormous considering the distant site of the great fair. There will be considerable decrease in the passenger revenues of the railway lines having direct routes to the Exposition.

FAIRLY GOOD SALES.

But Will Not Come in Abundantly Unless Season Changes.

Despite dry and cold weather and generally unfavorable conditions for a full market, fairly large sales of goods took place to-day at the warehouses to-day. Crenshaw will have fair sale, and Sheokee, Stonewall and Shelburne's follow in the order named. Yesterday afternoon thirty or forty wagons and packages had arrived at the Sheokee Warehouse, and the prospects are good for a sale of from 30,000 to 40,000 pounds to-day. At Crenshaw's Warehouse twelve or fifteen wagons and several packages have been received early last night. Stonewall and Shelburne's both have a number of wagons in and other sales are probably a hundred thousand pounds are likely to-day. Among the offerings are some very good qualities.

Small sales are looked for during the remainder of the week, unless a favorable change to more seasonable weather intervenes.
